

MAGISTRATE POOL SCORES A TENDERLOIN BONDSMAN.

Scathing Rebuke Is Delivered in Court to B.
Marcus.

A bitter tongue-lashing was directed at B. Marcus, better known as "Marks," by Magistrate Pool in the Jefferson Market Court this morning.

The attack was brought about by the failure of a nervous to appear. The woman had been arrested for soliciting and when there was no response to her name at 9 o'clock Magistrate Pool opened up. "Marks" is alleged to represent "Bob" Nelson in the furnishing of bail bonds for women arrested for disorderly conduct. Lawyer Lowenstein was in court in the interest of Marcus. The Magistrate declared the bond forfeited, but the attorney interceded and five minutes later the forfeiture was set aside.

MAGISTRATE POOL

Then the Magistrate said to Lowenstein: "Where is this man Marks? Go and get him and bring him before me." An hour later Marcus appeared. "Marks," said the Magistrate, "I've been waiting to see you for a long time. I am glad you have come before me. I have a letter here from the District Attorney, saying you are a straw bondsman."

Lowenstein protested, but Magistrate Pool answered fiercely: "I say I have this letter from the District Attorney and I believe what he says. You are a fake bondsman. Further, I put you on the black list. You're the successor of Nelson in the Tenderloin. As a matter of fact you represent interest and share the blood money with you.

"It is a disgrace to the City of New York. It is a shame that you should be permitted to profit by the trade of these poor wretches."

You are getting rich on these women, and the City Treasury is even profiting by their arrest. You had better go back to the country you came from if you can't earn a living any other way. You have children. Don't you ever think of them? Don't you ever think of the disgrace you are bringing upon them? Do you want them to grow up and have it said that their father made his money out of disorderly women?

"If you are seeking to do good come in the morning and pay the fines of these poor women. If you do I will let them off with 12, but every bond you are on it will cost the woman 15."

Magistrate Pool continued in a more compassionate mood: "I know these women are entitled to bonds but it would be far better to let them remain in prison all night. The police arrest them; they are jailed out by you and then they go out on the streets again to earn the money that you charge them and the fine the Magistrate imposes upon them in the morning. It is too horrible a condition to contemplate."

Your lawyer charges you $25 for appearing in this case. If I were he I would charge you 100. I would be none too much for such a case."

Nelson. What property have you? What entitles you to act as bondsman? Where are the deeds to your property?"

Lowenstein said that Marcus was in the tailoring business at No. 11 Seventh avenue, and that he did not make a cent by going on the bonds of women.

Magistrate Pool retorted: "Scarcely a case of this kind from the Tenderloin comes before me that you are not on the bond. This is a miserable business you are engaged in."

"You profit from the misfortune of these poor creatures of the street. I am told you charge from $5 to $10 for every bond. They tell me you make $100 a week out of this awful business of yours. It is even charged that the police arrest these women in your

VANDERBILTS FIGHT TAX LAW.

Trustees of Cornelius
Appeal to U. S. Supreme Court.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—Papers in a case involving the validity of the New York State transfer tax upon the estate of the late Cornelius Vanderbilt were filed in the United States Supreme Court to-day.

The action arose out of the objection of the trustees of the estate to pay the tax, this objection being based upon the ground that the estate had only been bequeathed to Mr. Vanderbilt by his father, the late William H. Vanderbilt, in trust, and that as the latter's estate had at the time of his demise paid the inheritance tax upon this as upon other parts of the estate, it was not subject to a transfer tax, for which provision had been made since that time.

The New York courts decided the tax constitutional, and the case is brought to the Supreme Court on a writ of error. Among other items of the estate is one including $2,000,000 worth of Government bonds.

SUNDAY CLOSING LAW SUSTAINED

Test Case Brought by Cohen Fails in the Court.

Herman Cohen, who applied for release from the Tombs under a writ of habeas corpus was today remanded and the writ dismissed by Justice O'Gorman in Part II of the Supreme Court.

Cohen was charged with selling 14 cents worth of meat on Sunday in violation of the closing law. He claimed that he was a Hebrew and observed the Sabbath, hence could open on Sunday.

In his opinion Justice O'Gorman says that the position taken by Cohen is untenable and that Hebrews are not exempt. "The distinction between labor and public traffic drawn by the Legislature in the law," says the opinion, "is obvious. Public traffic, never mingled with whom conducted, must necessarily cause a disturbance or interference in the due observance of the day."

Thus the Sunday closing law is sustained and judged constitutional. No business can be open on Sunday and be free from arrest.

LOCOMOTIVES IN COLLISION.

Engines Crashed Into
Each Other on Crossing.

Two locomotives on the Harlem River Railroad came into collision this morning at the South Amboy crossing of the New York and Long Branch Railroad.

Both were upset and smashed. The engine on the road delayed trains from New York for an hour.

Engineers and firemen jumped to the rescue and all escaped injury. The passenger train, due in New York at 10 o'clock, arrived an hour late because of the accident.

POKER DECISION IS NOT ACE HIGH.

Stern Justice Demands Revocation of Court's Ruling About "Queer" Money in Jack Pots.

Junk in the Jackpot.

An Indiana Federal jury has decided that it is not a violation of the law to open a "jackpot" with a counterfeit dollar. Nor a violation of the law, forsooth! If it isn't high crime and treason against these United States, then the Constitution doesn't follow the flag out in Hoosierdom!

How the great State of Indiana ever got twelve good and true men together to render a verdict which strikes at these very fundamental principles of our Government, guaranteeing the life, liberty and happiness of the people is past comprehension. What are they doing in Indiana these days?

Are they a lot of white-livered old maid and cunning players? Shame upon you, Indiana! It is up to you to defend the besmirched name of your commonwealth by bringing this great national question up to the Supreme Court and have the blot removed from your escutcheon.

It should be stated to the everlasting glory of the judge who sat upon the case that he was not in sympathy with the verdict.

"From my knowledge of 'jack-pots,'" said he, commenting upon the decision, "I should think it was a crime."

The honor of the tribunal was upheld by this "obiter dictum" of the judge, and his name deserves a place among the tablets of those heroes of our nation enrolled in the hall of fame. The good citizens of Indiana should get together and erect a monument to this defender of the honor of the people.

The Supreme Court must pass on it. The people are waiting. If necessary, in order that the peace of the country may not be disturbed, a special session of Congress should be called to enact the pressing legislation that this honest decision calls for. It should be put into the Constitution and enforced by all the machinery of the Government.

Think of the far-reaching and appalling results of such a legal sanction! It will be the solar plexus blow to poker-playing. Civilization itself totters before the consequences.

Conceive of a quiet game in which you have opened a nice fat pot with four aces. The other fellows in all around the board until you have a snug little fortune stacked up in front of you, and your feet are just beginning to feel the delightful tingle of a cushion.

Then you are called and throw down your money, only to find that you have raked in a lot of lead slugs and queer green goods! Wouldn't that send you to the hospital?

No, sir! That decision must go! If it applies to poker it may be extended to any game with a corner to it. Finally will come under the decision, and by the same legal decision such prizes and the like will be included. It is bad enough, without legal sanction, to come away from a euchre party with a cheap imitation of silver in the shape of a cigar cutter or match safe. With the backing of the courts it will be an awful assortment of gold-brick junk that a man carries away with him after a night's triumph at the euchre board. The sovereign people won't stand for it!

IDIOT BOY'S INJURIES FATAL

Nurse May Be Held Responsible for Mc-Carthy's Death.

Charles McCarthy, an idiot boy of fifteen years, who was scalded in a bathtub by another inmate of the Kings County Hospital two weeks ago, died in that institution to-day.

The Brooklyn police are investigating the case and expect to arrest a nurse, who is charged with neglecting his duty in guarding the lad.

The Union Label is the battle emblem of the war-rior-worker. Every dollar that a Union man (of any trade) spends in a non-union house (of any trade) is a dollar toward the destruction of unionism—a dollar toward the unending degradation of labor.

The thanks of the Nation are due to the Clothing Union for this: They have created not merely a wage standard for themselves, but a sanitary standard, a safety standard for the public—for you personally. Their requirements as to light, air, room, cleanliness, health are the strictest in the world—and rigidly enforced. Every garment we sell bears the union label.

WOULD HOLD UP GAME BIRD RAID IS SKELETON "SCOTCH DAN'S?"

State Protectors Have Got 15,940 Out of Storage.

Attorney Julius Offenbach, representing the Arctic Freezing Company, appeared before Magistrate Meade in the Centre Street Court this morning and filed a motion for the suspension of the search warrant issued by the Magistrate yesterday, under which State Game Protectors Overton and Bond are continuing their search for game birds in the West Street Storage House.

Mr. Offenbach stated that the accumulation of evidence in the shape of birds could not aid any criminal proceeding, inasmuch as one bird would prove guilt as much as 20,000.

"The recovery of penalty," he said, "must be a civil action brought by the protectors. They had found 15,940 birds before this warrant was issued."

On the expiration of Judge Foster's warrant, Mr. Overton obtained another from Magistrate Meade yesterday, as Judge Foster was not on the bench.

JOCKEY BURNS STARTED FIRE.

Threw Lighted Cigarette in Hotel Lace
Curtain.

Jockey Tommy Burns and his cigarette camp were burning up the Ocean Grove Hotel, right across from the Sheephead Bay race track, at 8 o'clock last night. The place was crowded, and the guests fled in panic.

Burns sat in a window seat with a woman. He was smoking cigarettes with great gusto. Suddenly he threw away a lighted cigarette which landed in the lace window curtain.

It blazed up instantly, and the cry of fire arose. The place was crowded, and most of the guests rushed out in fright.

Among the guests were Fritz Lindinger, proprietor of the cafe at Nos. 36 and 38 Liberty street, and a party of friends, including ex-Judge Patrick Divver, of the Second Assembly District. Mr. Lindinger pulled down the blazing curtain and stamped it out, badly burning his hands.

The woman with Burns arose with a shriek and then fell in a faint in Mr. Divver's arms.

Burns disappeared at the first cry of fire.
